By Mary Pando, OWSL

After 30 years of practicing law, Grace Anne Glavin will attribute her success to steadfast hard work and her results-oriented approach to cases. Her clients will likely relate that it's her knowledge and experience but also her friendliness, accessibility and family-like office atmosphere. "Visiting an attorney can be a formidable experience," Glavin says. "I go out of my way to put clients at ease. I want them to know they can count on me to solve their problems."

She opened her own law office in Winter Park in 1985, leaving Orlando's prestigious Akerman Senterfitt & Eidson practice, which she joined in 1982 following a relocation from upstate New York. Her law office moved to Tuskawilla in 1990. Glavin's areas of practice include residential and commercial property transactions, mortgage law, foreclosure litigation, estate planning and probate, family law and general litigation.

Glavin's client of more than 15 years, Julie Bailey, a local real estate agent, says, "She never interferes with an agent's job but facilitates closings so that everyone is satisfied. Having Grace available to answer all our questions makes my job easier and enhances the quality of services I offer buyers and sellers. She has a great heart and is the hardest worker I know. She will do whatever it takes to serve her clients."

In 1994, Glavin founded Morgan Title Company and added the company's offices to her own on Tuskawilla Road to service real estate closings and enhance cost saving production. Glavin's Title company's namesake is her Morgan showhorse, Notfield Don Dancer. His likeness graces the company logo. Dancer has earned multiple Grand National Championships. He is a Florida Dressage champion a Southern States Hunter champion, and a North American Pleasure Driving champion. Although she lives in Tuskawilla, Glavin boards Dancer on her farm in Chuluota where she enjoys his service on carriage rides and trains him for upcoming shows. "Keeping my wonderful horse is the main reason I will never retire," she says.

Glavin is especially proud of her daughter, Elizabeth Getz, a sophomore at Winter Springs High School. Elizabeth is a dancer with the Central Florida Ballet who has studied and performed internationally.

As she looks to the future, Glavin hopes to continue her volunteer legal work with area senior citizens and further other community service interests. She plans one day to expand her practice in Winter Springs and continue her already successful career as a respected, skillful attorney.
